Matter Ordinance

Type:

This ordinance authorizes Columbus City Council to enter into contract with Drs. Chenelle Jones and Alexander Heckman for the provision of a municipal identification feasibility study.

Under the direction of Columbus City Council, Drs. Jones and Heckman will research the feasibility of creating a municipal ID program in the City of Columbus and present best practices and program options. Quantitative and qualitative data will be collected using electronic academic databases, professional publications, surveys, interviews, and focus groups with relevant stakeholders. Specific stakeholders that will be interviewed or surveyed include city administrators, law enforcement officials, residents, and other relevant stakeholders in cities that have implemented municipal ID programs or that have considered implementing an ID program and declined to do so. The mixed methods approach will allow researchers to obtain a comprehensive understanding of the benefits and challenges of implementing a municipal ID program.
